

JACQUI CHEER
SUFFOLK CONSTABULARY
DEPUTY CHIEF CONSTABLE

Mrs Cheer joined the force in July 2006 as Assistant Chief Constable and prior to this worked within the Home Office's Reform Unit.

During her 22 years of service, all within Essex Police, Mrs Cheer gained operational experience of counter-terrorist policing, policing large public events (such as the Southend Air Show) and working with a range of partners to reduce crime, detect more offences and minimise anti-social behaviour.

As Deputy Chief Constable, Mrs Cheer is in charge of the Protective Services Department, Policing and Professional Standards Department, Human Resources and has overseen the Constabulary's recent Strategic Review.

Mrs Cheer was Gold Commander for Operation Sumac, the investigation into the murders of five young women within Ipswich at the end of 2006.

Jacqui is married and currently lives in North Essex.
